Jaisalmer, often called the "Golden City," is a stunning desert town located in the heart of the Thar Desert, Rajasthan. The centerpiece is the magnificent Jaisalmer Fort, a UNESCO World Heritage site and one of the world's few living forts, where nearly a quarter of the old city's population still resides. Constructed in the 12th century, the fort houses intricately carved Jain temples and havelis (mansions) adorned with elaborate facades. Beyond the fort, the city is famed for the Sam Sand Dunes, offering visitors an authentic experience of the desert landscape through camel safaris and traditional folk performances.
